

Seasons of plenty

Je 6th

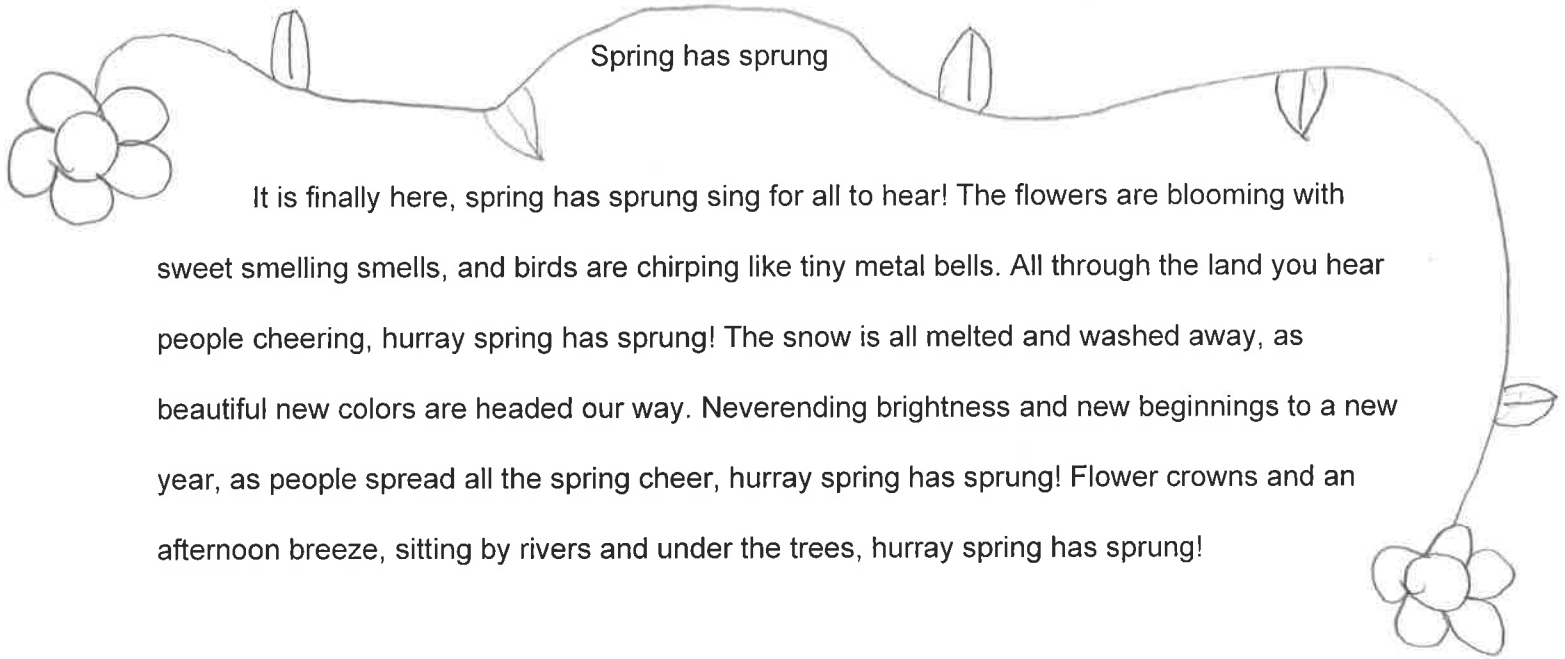

Fiction

Poetry

Nonfiction

1	Spring has sprung	Page 1
2	Summer of joy	Page 1
3	Autumn breezes	Page 2
4	A winter I won't forget	Page 2
5	To many seasons	Page 3

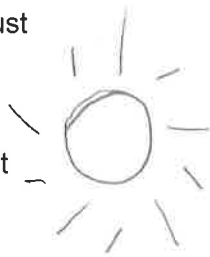

Spring has sprung

It is finally here, spring has sprung sing for all to hear! The flowers are blooming with sweet smelling smells, and birds are chirping like tiny metal bells. All through the land you hear people cheering, hurray spring has sprung! The snow is all melted and washed away, as beautiful new colors are headed our way. Neverending brightness and new beginnings to a new year, as people spread all the spring cheer, hurray spring has sprung! Flower crowns and an afternoon breeze, sitting by rivers and under the trees, hurray spring has sprung!

Summer of joy

Summer, the season of excitement and fun in the sun. Jogs around the park and exercise for everyone. Ice cold popsicles under the shade of a huge tree, while children are laughing and singing with glee. Outdoor barbeques with plenty of food, pool parties and fun just the right mood. Longer days and hours await, to sleep in and enjoy relaxation don't be late! Going to water parks and eating ice cream, what else could you want though it is to seem that sadly, summer wont stay forever.

Autumn breezes

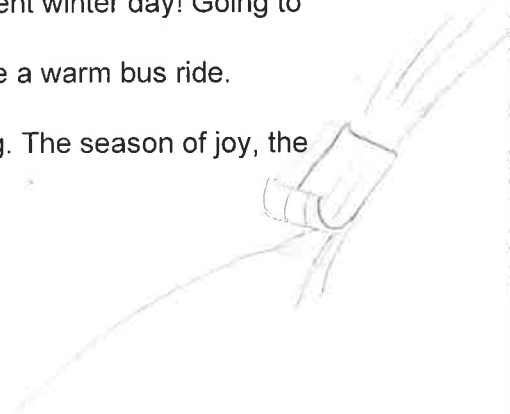

Ah, autumn is here. Time for some Halloween cheer. Spooky goblins and witches all alike, climb on a broomstick and take flight. Dress up and transform yourself into anyone you want, and eat delicious candy all day under the full moon. After all that is done, there still is way more fun! Jumping in leaf piles has booked your whole afternoon, but the day is over already so soon. Different colors of leaves above you, so simple and nice isn't it true? Strolls through pumpkin farms to choose the perfect one, just only until the day is done. Time to rest from a long Autumn day, maybe this time, autumn will stay.

A winter I won't forget

Oh, so cold, is it already here? Winter has come to give us some holiday cheer. Christmas with laughter and warmth by the fire, look at all the presents I don't think I will ever tire! Hot coco and watching the snowfall, fifty percent off black friday at the mall! Bundle up and go outside, it's not sunny, looks like the weatherman lied. Brand new sled for christmas what fun! Racing through the snowy and icy hills upon a sley, what an excellent winter day! Going to school is not much fun when it is five below outside, but it is nice to take a warm bus ride. Candles on the mantel glowing, the warmth inside your heart is growing. The season of joy, the season of love and caring, this holiday season all are sharing.

To many seasons

We all love Spring, Summer, Winter and Fall, but what if we could get some of all? It would be like barbeques and hot chocolate, flowers and dead leaves, snow and rain, icicles and brightly colored trees. Ice skating while playing basketball, hotdogs and popsicles for all! Flower crowns and snowmen in the late afternoon, waking up early in the morning but your bedtime is now soon. Snowcones and costumes of all shapes and sizes, a jog in the morning for daily exercises. School one day the next a snow day, the next day it would be summer so you could go out and play. All the seasons are full of liveliness and fun, but in a competition there is no best one. All the seasons are perfect the way they are, all are famous, all are a star.

Seasons
