

The Lonely Snowman, Sparkles

GRADE

First

Fiction

Poetry

Nonfiction

One day, in Rock Springs, a little boy named Kevin and a little girl named Pony made a snowman. They made arms, hands and feet out of snowballs and they put orange food coloring in the hands, and purple food coloring in the feet. They named the snowman Sparkles.

Sparkles got lonely when Pony and Kevin had to go inside. He looked all around the town for snow people. There was no other snowman in the town. The snowman Sparkles was sad. He heard Kevin saying he would like to go live at the North Pole. Kevin's mother said "It's too cold at the North Pole! Only snowmen can live there."

Sparkles went to the North Pole in the night. He met many other snowmen there. He was glad that he went to the North Pole. One of the snowmen gave Sparkles a mug of iced cocoa. He made snow friends and drank the iced cocoa on the way home. It was fun.

When he got back home, he got back in his place where he was before he had left. Kevin found his snowman with a mug that had some cocoa left in it. Sparkles wasn't the same as Kevin had left him. Kevin decided to play with him to make sure he wouldn't get lonely again, because Kevin had seen Sparkles leave. They danced and drank iced cocoa. Well, at least Sparkles did. Kevin drank hot cocoa.

Pony came out and saw that Kevin was drinking hot cocoa and Sparkles was drinking iced cocoa. Pony drank some hot cocoa, too. Then Pony and Kevin threw snowballs over Sparkles.

The End.