- Also happening this past week all students took a MAPP assessment in ELA and Math. MAP Growth from NWEA® is a computer adaptive assessment—meaning that the difficulty of questions adjusts throughout the assessment based on the student's responses.
- MAP Growth assessments provide a scaled score referred to as the RIT score, which is a measurement that quantifies a student's academic performance. The RIT score allows educators to initially identify students' achievement in a given subject area. Since the RIT scale is grade-independent, educators can track a student's growth over time.
- Based on a student's RIT score, MAP Growth assessments provide suggested areas of strength and focus that address New York State Learning Standards so that educators can personalize their instructional planning for students in their classrooms.
