

March

3/4/5 - Room 218

PSMS29 - The Melrose School

Dear families,

I hope everyone had a relaxing and enjoyable mid-February break. March is full of important learning for your young scholars and I appreciate the effort you make each day to send them to school. Let's keep up this collaboration in supporting your child's learning! Please see the rest of the newsletter for important information. Mr. Wagner

Reading & Writing

In reading, your child is becoming an avid reader, which means they're becoming the kind of reader that simply cannot stop reading. They're learning all about what true avid readers do.

In writing, your child is going to become a teacher, writing nonfiction chapter books about a topic they know ALL about, like soccer, Pokemon or barbies!

Math

In math, your child is beginning to learn all about division. They started the year off learning about addition and subtraction and then moved into multiplication.

Now, it's time to learn the trickiest of them all - division.

In order to be successful in these next units, your child must practice their addition, subtraction and multiplication facts at home. Please support this!

Reminders

PLEASE have your child do their homework at night - check the sight word choice board on their take home folder for sight word homework!

Last day of school before spring recess: March 29th

School resumes from spring recess on April 9th
